As ICJ Vice-President he presided over several important cases before the Court, including a case on the use and threatened use of nuclear weapons³².

Garrett Hardin's *Tragedy of the Commons*³³, argues that the population problem has no technical solution; it requires a fundamental extension in morality: "At the end of a thoughtful article on the future of nuclear war, Wiesner & York concluded that: "Both sides in the arms race are ... confronted by the dilemma of steadily increasing military power and steadily decreasing national security. It is our considered professional judgment that this dilemma has no technical solution. If the great powers continue to look for solutions in the area of science and technology only, the result will be to worsen the situation.""

Pres Putin: "Hopefully, no nukes will be needed against ISIS."³⁴

³² "In its advisory opinion on the legality of the threat or use of nuclear weapons, the International Court of Justice (ICJ) observed that such threat or use would generally be contrary to international humanitarian law. The opinion went on to state, however, that the court "cannot lose sight of the fundamental right of every State to survival, and thus its right to resort to self-defence . . . when its survival is at stake." The court held, by seven votes to seven, with its president's casting vote, that it "cannot conclude definitively whether the threat or use of nuclear weapons would be lawful or unlawful in an extreme circumstance of self defence in which the very survival of a State would be at stake." – Excerpt Rendulic Rule: Military Necessity: <http://tygae.weebly.com/military-necessity-doctrine.html>

Re: EoP Applicants & Lawyers: Summary of EoP ICC Complaint Req for Counsel Correspondence:

The KGB³⁵ or Komitet gosudarstvennoy bezopasnosti, translated in English as Committee for State Security, was the main security agency for the Soviet Union from 1954 until its break-up in 1991. Formed in 1954, as a direct successor of the Cheka³⁶, NKGB³⁷, and MGB³⁸, the committee was attached to the Council of Ministers. The KGB was a military service and was governed by army laws and regulations, similar to the Soviet Army or MVD Internal Troops. While most of the KGB archives remain classified, two online documentary sources are available. Its main functions were foreign intelligence, counterintelligence, operative-investigatory activities, guarding the State Border of the USSR, guarding the leadership of the Central Committee of the Communist Party and the Soviet Government, organization and ensuring of government communications as well as combating nationalism, dissent, and anti-Soviet activities. After the dissolution of the USSR, the KGB was split into the FSB: Federal Security Service³⁹ and the Foreign Intelligence Service of the Russian Federation. It is headquartered in Lubyanka Square, Moscow's centre, in the main building of the former KGB. The Director of the FSB since 2008 is army general Aleksandr Bortnikov.

The National Security Agency⁴⁰ is an intelligence organization of the United States government, responsible for global monitoring, collection, and processing of information and data for foreign intelligence and counterintelligence purposes a.k.a. SIGINT: signals intelligence. NSA is concurrently charged with protection of U.S. government communications and information systems against penetration and network warfare. It originated as a unit to decipher coded communications in World War II, and was officially formed as the NSA by Harry S. Truman on 04 November 1952. The NSA Director, currently Admiral Mike Rogers, simultaneously serves as the Commander of the United States Cyber Command and as Chief of the Central Security Service; who reports to the Director of National Intelligence; currently James Clapper.
